WAS IKE'S 1956 ELECTION A FOREGONE CONCLUSION?

FIND OUT OCTOBER 13, 2006, 2:30 p.m. - 5:00 p.m.

Daun van Ee, history specialist, Library of Congress; Michael Birkner, history professor, Gettysburg College; and Robert Gilbert, Northeastern University, Boston, an expert on presidential health, will discuss the major issues of the 1956 presidential campaign. Roemer McPhee, a member of the Eisenhower White House staff, will join them in a panel discussion.

The escalation of the Cold War, a changing domestic front, and Ike's heart attack all made for major issues during the campaign. Was Ike's election a foregone conclusion? Come and find out.

More information will be sent shortly. If you have any questions, telephone 877 746 4453, toll free, or E-mail, eisenhower.library@nara.gov
